The Quaker Crimped Crust Bread Pan.

As the Crimps so shall thy Slicing be.

It is with no small degree of pleasure that we present to the public this new device which makes itself felt immediately, for the reason that it strikes directly at the foundation of good living and household economy. Everybody knows that the first great requisite to good living is good bread, and it is therefore passing strange that for ages there has been practically no improvement in this most necessary, essential and indispensable article of diet. Not even the painful cries of the hopeless dyspeptic, agonizing under the baleful influence of the sodden underdone bread of the country, have been sufficient to start the inventive genius, man. The physician and the inventor of patent nostrums have seen their opportunity and have piled the stomach of man with worm-wood and gall in their efforts to repair the wrong produced by the consumptive of bad bread.

RELIEF AT LAST!

Relief has come at last in the invention of the Quaker Crimped Crust Bread Pan. It is not a novelty, but a thoroughly reliable addition to the culinary department of the household. It has been thoroughly tested, and is now being used extensively by all classes and conditions of people. It has sprung into popular favor with a suddenness that shows how great was the need for such an article. We wish at this time to point out a few of the advantages of the Quaker Crimped Crust over the ordinary bread pans now in use, and after so doing we shall leave it to the consideration of the individual.

ADVANTAGES OF THE QUAKER CRIMPED CRUST PANS OVER ALL OTHERS.

Taken for granted your flour is good, that your yeast is fresh and potent, and that you have observed all the conditions necessary to the making of a good sponge—the great prime requisite in the baking of bread is an even application of the heat which shall produce a perfect conglomeration of the albumen. The Quaker Crimped Crust has the advantage of being round, and receives the heat from all points at the same time. There can be no burning on the top while the bottom remains underdone and soggy, as in the old square pan so common in use.

GREATER HEATING AND CRUST SURFACE.

The Quaker has more heating surface than any other pan. "It's in the crimp!"—the many folds of which afford a large surface for the even distribution and application of the heat.

WERE TOGETHER

Walling, Pearl Bryan and Jackson Ate Supper at Hayden's.

Mrs. A. T. Root Says That She Saw Them There That Fatal Night.

Detective McDermott Identifies Pearl's Belongings Found in Walling and Jackson's Room—Walling Admitted Advising Jackson of Medicine.

NEWPORT, Ky., June 6.—The deputy clerk threw the valises and bloody garments of Pearl Bryan at the feet of the state's attorneys Saturday morning. With Detective Jack McDermott in the oak witness chair, the trial of Alonzo Walling for homicide was resumed. McDermott answered questions positively. For a time the attorneys kept him busy identifying Pearl Bryan's belongings found in Walling and Jackson's room. Attorney Shepherd examined two handkerchiefs in the lot, and threw them back to Attorney Hayes. They went floating through the air.

The solemn scene in Eppler's undertaking establishment, when Walling and Jackson were taking to view Pearl Bryan's corpse, was brought to view again by the state. McDermott was present when Walling was accused of the murder, and the prosecution sought to show Walling's conduct.

Police Superintendent Deutsch was the next witness. He answered the questions with military precision. In conversation in the chief's office Walling told Deutsch that he had met Pearl Bryan on the last Wednesday afternoon of her life at Fourth and Race streets. Jackson sent him there, Deutsch said, that Walling admitted having advised Jackson to give Pearl Bryan ergot of rye; that he knew she was coming to the city; that he did not know what had become of her.

Walling, Jackson and Pearl Bryan were seen together in Hayden's restaurant the Thursday night before the murder. The entire new testimony of Attorney A. T. Root in the Walling trial late Friday afternoon was to this effect. Had the prosecution called Mrs. Root instead of her husband to the witness stand, her evidence would have been even more sensational. She would have sworn that it was the Friday night of the murder when she and her husband saw Pearl Bryan in the company of Walling and Jackson in Hayden's restaurant. This testimony would have carried the connection of the girl with her believed murderers down to a later time than any other witness, save Conchman Jackson has fixed.

"It was Friday night, and not Thursday, as my husband thinks," says Mrs. Root, "when we saw the three young people sitting in the restaurant. I am able to fix the night because of a party which was given that Friday evening on our side of the river. My two daughters attended, and I think my husband and I hastened home in order that I might help them complete their arrangements."

This was the party which Judge Helm's son attended. After the party the young man says he crossed the Newport Bridge in his father's carriage. Attorney Root did not retire that night until after two o'clock. From his residence he had a good view of the Newport bridge. As he looked out of the window, waiting for the young people to return from the party, he says he saw many carriages crossing the bridge.

FATAL FLY BITES.

Horses in Northern Louisiana Bitten in the Morning Are Dead by Night.

NEW ORLEANS, June 6.—Authentic reports from Shreveport say thousands of horses, cows, mules, hogs and sheep are dying in north Louisiana from the bite of flies. The animals are attacked in the morning and are dead by night. Hundreds of carcasses are strewn along the tracks of the Vicksburg, Shreveport & Pacific railroad between Monroe and Vicksburg.

People are burning the bodies, and the stench is overpowering. Passengers over this line arrived Friday and say at Delhi, where the train stops for dinner, none of the passengers left the cars because of the terrible smell. Farmers are seriously hampered in getting in the season's crop, as they dare not bring fresh stock into the country. In the affected districts no fresh meat, milk or butter can be used, as the people fear they will be poisoned. Corps of veterinary surgeons are preparing to leave for the scene to study the nature of the terrible disease and fly that causes it, as such havoc was never before known in this section.

AGED BEER.

It Lay Buried in a Well for Twenty Years and Tastes Like Old Port Wine.

WEST UNION, O., June 6.—While John Fritz and Adam Hensell were cleaning out an old well at the Ripley laundry works they found buried in the sand at a depth of forty-five feet, two kegs of beer made at the old Reibert brewery 21 years ago. At that time August Knochele was operating a saloon and used the well for cooling beer, and the supposition is that the kegs were lost in the deep water at that time and were not discovered until now. The kegs were tapped and the beer in one of them found to be in a good state of preservation. It had the flavor of old port.

Congressman Turner Declines a Renom- ination.

WASHINGTON, June 6.—Representative S. S. Turner of the Seventh Virginia congressional district has written an open letter to his constituents, declining a renomination to congress. Mr. Turner is reasonably certain of a good majority on delegates in the district convention and consequently of a renomination and election, but he prefers retirement to a renomination on a silver platform, which he deems certain in view of the action of the democratic state convention at Staunton on Wednesday last.

Killed a Stranger in a Drunken Frenzy. MONTGOMERY, W. Va., June 6.—Saturday morning, at Paint Creek, James Grigg, in a drunken frenzy, shot and killed Bob Kimbrough, an old C. & O. employe. Grigg lives at DeGo, and is in the custody of officers. The parties were not acquainted.
